CONGRESSIONAL CONVENTION.

From the Raleigh News.

Yesterday at twelve o'clock the Conservative Democratic Convention of this district assembled at Metropolitan Hall. Mr. Henry A. London Chairman of the District Executive Committee called the Convention to order in a speech brief and to the point and brimful of the animated zeal and fervent eloquence of a true party orator. Mr. London said:

Gentleman: It has again become my pleasant duty, as Chairman of the District Executive Committee, to call together a Convention of the Democratic party of this the Metropolitan District. When last we met in Convention assembled our hopes of a successful canvass were not very encouraging, for at the preceding election our candidate had been defeated by over 700 majority, but in nowise daunted by that reverse, you girded up your loins for a mighty effort, and entrusting your banner to the gallant Davis, went forth to battle and to victory. The adverse majority of 700 was blotted out as a foul stain, and by a majority of over 1,600 the freemen of this district declared for Joe Davis and against the Civil Rights Bill. I congratulate you on the great and glorious victory which then rewarded your efforts, and if we are only true to ourselves and our country, alike success will again crown your labors, and in November next the welkin will ring with your shouts of victory.

Mr. London then appointed Mr. Calvin E. Parish of Hillsboro as temporary Chairman of the Convention and T. C. Evans of Raleigh temporary Secretary until a permanent organization was perfected. Mr. T. Brown Venable of Granville and Benjamin Bunn of Nash were selected to escort Mr. Parish to the chair.

On taking the chair, Mr. Parish said:

Gentlemen of the Metropolian District: I congratulate you upon this auspicious occasion and am proud to recognize so large and intelligent a number of my countrymen present. It is a sure indication of firmness and fidelity and glorious success. We have met to-day to present to the people of this district a candidate to represent them in the lower House of the American Congress, and in doing so we trust that harmony and good feeling will prevail, and that no discordant element may be allowed to enter our ranks. The time has now come when a long suffering people must learn to lay aside personal prejudice and personal favoritism; the State can no longer suffer defeat; sixteen years of Radical rule in North Carolina has well nigh wrought ruin upon her people. Our duty here to day is simple but important: We expect to present a gentleman as a candidate for Congress, whose name is a synonym for truth and virtue and honor, and in November next we intend to elect him by a majority of more than 1,620. I now call the Convention to order.

Mr. J. A Womack, of Chatham, moved that a committee of one from each county in the district be appointed to form a permanent organization. Adopted. The Chair appointed the committee and after a few minutes retirement Capt. Sam T. Williams as Chairman of the committee reported the following permanent organization:

For President—C. M. Cooke of Franklin.

For Vice Presidents—Thomas Webb, of Orange Joseph A. Haywood, of Wake, Dr. J. W. Virk, of Johnson, T. B. Venable, of Granville, Dr. R. K. Smith, of Chatham, Jas. S. Battle, of Nash. W. S. Mallory, of Franklin.

Secretaries—T. C. Evans, Wake, and W. A. Davis, Granville.

Assistant Secretaries—The representatives of the Democratic newspapers in the district.

Previous to this report on organization and during the retirement of the committee there were cries for "Thomas," and Mr. Thomas, a worthy and hard fisted farmer of Franklin county spoke as follows:

Mr Chairman: I never was called but what I answered. I live in the county of Franklin, the home of Joe Davis, the place he was born, and I am bound to rise. If I can only say something in favor of him, something in favor of the State of North Carolina, it is glory enough for me that I done it. This is a great time; a noble time; we ought all to feel proud. I expect to live to be one of the oldest men in the State and I expect to answer when I'm called as long as I live, and when I'm too old to answer myself I shall call on the next best man to answer for me. [Applause and laughter.] A man ought never feel afraid to speak his sentiments if he never went to school in his life. I listen to the name of Joe Davis. It's a sweet name. Not a muscle in my tongue but what would lisp it. [Cheers and laughter.] Franklin County never had a delegate till she had Joe Davis and I'm going to hold to him as long as I can hold him.

I learn since I've been here that misfortunes have befoll us. Independent candidates have come out. The white folks in North Carolina the best white folks in creation and we can beat all the independent candidates in the world. [More applause.]

Just here the committee came in with their report on organization as above mentioned and the worthy farmer concluded his speech remarking that he 'wasn't half through.'

The temporary chairman appointed Messrs C. M. Busbee of Raleigh and S. J. Skinner of Granville to escort the permanent chairman, Capt. C. M. Cooke, to the chair. Capt. Cooke thanked the Convention for the honor but he had promised one of the gentlman who had conducted him not to make a long speech and he therefore announced this Convention as ready for business.

Mr. Bledsoe of Wake proposed by acclamation the election of the Hon. J. J. Davis of Franklin as the candidate for Congress.

Mr. Boulhac claimed for old Orange the honor of nominating Mr. Davis before this Convention. After proving for two years so acceptable to us in Congress we come here to-day to ask the privilege of nominating him and we will give him a larger vote in Orange county than ever before.

Mr. Plummer Batchelor for Wake moved that the nomination of Mr. Davis be declared unanimous. (applause.)

Mr. George Snow, of Raleigh, moved that every delegate present be allowed to make the same motion. (cheers.)

Mr. Moring: Every member of the Chatham delegation makes the same motion.

The Chairman put the motion and the house with much enthusiasm declared the nomination of the Hon. J. J. Davis unanimous.

Mr Boulhac, of Orange nominated Fab. H. Busbee, of Wake, for Presidential elector in this district, and Mr. Busbee was elected by acclamation.

Messrs James S. Battle, of Nash, and Thmas Webb, of Orange, were declared, by acclamation, delegates St. Louis, and Messrs A. W. Graham of Orange, and S. J. Skinner, were chosen Alternates.

STARTING IN LIFE.

Life is a strange journey up a steep hill, and steepest at the start. Like starting a boat, a ship or a locomotive, the dead lift comes at the beginning. It takes less steam when the wheels are in motion. Thousands of merchants, lawyers, doctors and thinkers have struggled for a lifetime without the accident of success, for success seems more accidental than common. But in the world at large, cases are rare of real merit long unrewarded where all the means at hand are carefully utilized.

Starting in life, like starting in a race, is not a sure index of winning. Trained muscles and iron endurance are equally essential. So in the race of men and animals; the best trained are usually more successful. So in the business world the careful thinker may rest certain of a safer voyage than a reckless navigator. Here, at the very threshold, must be brought knowledge, trained and mastered, and ready for the work before us.

The dream of youth is never forgotten, and the child should be fed upon fact, and reared upon reason, instead of the fancies and fictions of expected greatness; the truer teachings of reality should early be enforced. The dream of childhood should be true to nature—a father's best fortune to his child is a cultivated brain. It's more than millions—it lasts forever.

Fed on the fancies that fortune is easy of acquiring in some far-off country, boys are let to abandon home society and character for a risk or venture, without the truth before them that industry and character are the parents of good luck, and that, away off, in an unknown climate, they are little prepared to meet what awaits them. There they must create a confidence already acquired at home; and 'confidence', says Richelieu, 'is a capital on which we can always safely draw.' What a world of capital is wasted every year by roving men and women who follow the delusion that fortune is always in a far-off country! What a waste of force is expended in hunting after happiness! As well look for prunes on peach trees, or beauty in an alligator. Happiness is always at home and in reach.

For the most part, life is a struggle; success and defeat follow each other in quick succession; sorrow treads closely on the heels of joy. To find a man or woman who has passed a lifetime of happiness is to see a rare specimen in nature. It is a great deal more likely they have had their ups and downs—some of them many times before they gained a foothold. But their secret has been to forget trouble—to let it go—to pass on, take a new course, and succeed in something else. Have they started wrong? So have thousands—so will thousands for ages to come. But to scorn trouble, to correct errors, to right wrongs and keep moving, that's the secret of true independence.

The mind grows on the food it consumes, and the downcast look sees little of the sun. To start right, one must look inward. Self-respect is one of the surest evidence of culture; we must prepare for success—to be successful. To the man who said he likened an ideal woman to an angel, the witty woman replied, 'And how would you look by the side of an angel, you brute you!' There is an argument in that reply. It teaches us to conform to what we hope to be—to liken ourselves to what we would be like. Character and self-respect are attainable by all; they are fortunes in themselves, which the world may safely trust.

There was a time, long ago, among the ancients when the strongest men were chosen for kings and rulers, and the weaker ones were killed. To be noted then was to be cruel; to be noted now is to be good.

When the friends of Confucius, that greatest of all heathen philosophers, asked for one rule to govern a whole life, he said, 'What you would not have others do to you, do not do to them.' There is a god-like manhood in the sentiment; it is a fit rule for a lifetime. Another sentiment of Confucius was to 'preserve the purity of your person that you may return it at last to its Maker as spotless as you received it.' Health of body is essential to a beginning in the world. Health first, manners next, money last, for with the first we may get the others, but without health all happiness is destroyed.

There have lived men—their numbers are not few of late—who by schemes of villainy have rushed on to fortune by a ready road; but the examples of their failure, their imprisonment, their death and defeat, offer little inducement for others to follow. The world is looking for better men and truer women. A start in life to-day means something more than knavery and farce; it means intelligence; it means honest work well done. In whatever place we occupy, the highest success is in perfected workmanship. He is the noblest who live the best, and does a lasting good to all his race.

Again, search where you will, you can not find a more companionable person than yourself, if proper attention be paid to the individual. Yourself will go with you wherever you like, and come away when you please—approve your propositions, and, in short, be in every way agreeable, if you only learn and practice the true art of being on good terms with yourself. This, however, is not so easy as some imagine, who do not often try the experiment. Yourself, when it catches you in company with no other person, is apt to be a severe critic on your faults and foibles, and when you are censured by yourself, it is generally the severest and most intolerable species of reproof. It is on this account that you are afraid of yourself, and seek any associates, no matter how inferior, whose bold chat may keep yourself from playing the censor. If, then, you would find true happiness, study to be on good terms with yourself.

But ideas crowd upon us as our space grows less, and we close with the thought that starting in a problem each should think out for himself. Hints are all that we can give; changes will come soon enough, at best. The battle is your own; begin early to respect yourself. Choose an honest calling, with prospective promotion, if possible; then stick to it. Read up, study hard, think carefully, keep accounts of both income and expenses. Keep out of debt. Do your work well. The little difference between common work and fine work is well paid for. Remember, the world will still be your friend or enemy, as you choose to make it. Be friendly if you would have friends. Men go out of their way to do business with good houses. Deal with the lucky, but help the unfortunate. Fortune's favorites are the best skilled, best cultivated, best hearted, best mannered men and women. Such are first promoted, best paid, and last discharged. It pays to cultivate these gifts early in life. Men pay for them. They are at a premium in trade. 'Keep with the good, and you will be one of them.'—Bow Bells.

KEEP THE TONGUE.—Keep it from unkindness. Words are sometimes wounds Not very deep always, and yet irritate. Speech is unkind sometimes when there is no unkindness in the heart; so much the worse that, unintentional, pain is caused.

Keep it from falsehood. It is so easy to give a fast coloring, to so make a statement that it may convey a meaning different from the truth, that we need to be on our guard. There are very many who would shrink from telling a lie, who yet suffer themselves in such inaccurate or exaggerating, or one-sided statements that they really come under the condemnation of those whose 'lying lips are an abomination to the Lord.'

Keep it from slander. The good reputation of others should be dear to us; sin should not be suffered to go unrebuked; but it should be in accordance with the Scripture method, 'Go and tell him his fault between thee and him alone.' And it should be borne in mind that what is too often considered as merely harmless gossip runs dangerously near, if it does not pass, the confines of slander. A reputation is too sacred to be made a play thing of, even if intent be not malicious.

An original neighbor of old Rip Van Winkle was said to be so lazy that, when he went to hoe corn, he worked so slowly that the shade of his broad-brimmed hat killed the plants.

DARLING.

Trust me, darling, again,
Can you doubt it, darling mine,
That my heart is wholly thine?
Can you doubt it when you know,
Ever since that long ago,
When for love I kissed you,
Vowing always to be true.

Can you doubt it darling mine,
That my heart is wholly thine;
Though at times, it seems to you
That my heart is not so true;
Though it could it may seem to be,
Yet it wholly beats for thee.
Can you doubt it darling?

Can you doubt it, darling, mine,
Doubt my heart is wholly thine?
If you do I promise now
To renew again my vow,
Always till I cease to be
It shall beat alone for thee,
Will you trust it, darling mine.

A MORTGAGE.

In the whole range of sacred and profane literature, perhaps there is nothing recorded which has such staying properties as a good healthy mortgage.

A mortgage can be depended on to stick closer than a brother. It has a mission to perform which never lets up. Day after day it is right there, nor does the slightest tendency to slumber impair its vigor in the least. Night and day, and at holiday times, without a moment's rest for sickness or recreation, the biting offspring of its existence goes on.

The seasons may change, days run into weeks, weeks into months, and months be swallowed up into the gray man of advancing years, but that mortgage stands up in sleepless vigilance, with the interest, a perennial stream, ceaselessly running on.

Like a huge nightmare eating out the sleep of some restless slumberer, the unpaid mortgage rears up its gaunt front in perpetual torment to the miserable weight who is held within its miserable clutch. It holds the poor victim with the relentless grasp of a giant; not one hour of recreation, not a moment's evasion of its hideous presence. A genial savage of modifying aspect while the interest is paid, a very devil of hopeless destruction when the payments fail.

Other liabilities may be evaded or smoothed aside; but a mortgage hangs on with the pertinacity of a bull dog or the grip of a black-smith's vice. If the interest is not paid it is added to swell its grim parent, the principal, and holds up its horrible front with a harder seeming than before. It will have the pound of flesh which is nominated in the bond; and more terrible than the fearful witches in Macbeth, the threatening fiend. Foreclosure, rears up its dreaded menace with the crushing weight of hopeless despair.

Pity for the poor man who has the grim fiend in his household. Every hour of his life is fraught with one intact endurance of misery and dread, embittered with a grievious load he is powerless to shake away.—Industrial Age.

"JESUS, LOVER OF MY SOUL."

The brothers, John and Charles Wesley, with Richard Pilmore, were one evening holding a twilight meeting on the common, when they were attacked by a mob, and fled from its fury for their lives. The first place of refuge that they found, after having been for some time separated, was a hedgerow near at hand, behind which they hid a few minutes, protecting themselves from serious injury by the missiles that fell like hail about them, by clasping their hands above their heads as they lay with their faces in the dust. As night drew on, the darkness enabled them to leave their temporary retreat for a safer one at some distance. They found their way at last to a spring-house, where, in comparative security, they waited for their pursuers to weary of seeking them. "Here struck a light with a flint stone," dusted their soiled and tattered garments, and after quenching their thirst, bathed their hands and faces in the water that bubbled from the spring and flowed away in a sparkling streamlet. Then it was that Charles Westly was inspired to write "Jesus, lover of my soul," with a bit of lead which he had hammered into a pencil.

These circumstances beautifully illustrated the hymn, giving to almost every line a reality that makes it peculiarly significant to every loving christian heart. They had fled before their enemies, and found shelter from danger; he sang,

"Jesus, lover of my soul,
Let me to thy bosom fly"

SPEECH FROM GEN. HANCOCK.

At the reunion of the Army of the Potomac, held in Philadelphia, Gen. Hancock, President of the Association, made the opening speech as follows:

'Comrades of the Army of the Potomac: We are assembled here to-day, on the occasion of the Seventh Annual Reunion of our Society, to renew and cement friendships formed on the field of battle, to enquire as to the welfare of absent comrades, to determine the gaps made in our ranks by time, and to inaugurate such measures as may be possible or necessary to aid worthy comrades in distress, or the widows and orphans of deceased comrades who may require our assistance.

'We have no other purpose in meeting here. Here politics enter not, either to distract or disturb. We meet simply as brothers who are linked together in affection through memories of the past; by common dangers incurred, glories gained, privations suffered and hardships endured; and I am thankful that I am permitted to be present with you, and that the privileges of calling to order this meeting of my old comrades devolves upon me.

'But before proceeding with the exercises of this occasion it is proper that we should return thanks to Almighty God for His goodness in permitting us to be here and in health to-day, and to ask that His blessing may rest upon us all.

'The Rev. Mr. McVickar is requested to lead us in the expression of those thanks and invoking that blessing.''

THE LANGUAGE OF RINGS.

In case of a gentleman wishing to marry—literally in the market with his heart—he wears a plain or chased gold ring upon the first finger of the left (or heart) hand. When success attends his suit, and he is actually engaged, the rings passes to the second finger.

After marriage it passes to the third finger.

If, however, the gent desires to tell the fair ones that he not only is not 'in market,' but he does not design to marry at all, he wears the signet upon his little finger, and all ladies may understand that he is out of their reach!

With the fair sex the "laws of the ring" are: A plain or chased gold ring on the little finger on the right hand implies, "not engaged,' or, in plainer words, "ready for proposals, sealed or otherwise.'

When engaged the ring passes to the first finger of the left hand.

When married the third finger receives it. If the fair one proposes to defy all siege to her heart, she places the rings on her first and fourth finger—one on each, like two charms to keep away the tempter. It is somewhat singular that this disposition of rings is rare!

A prisoner in Texas, confined in a cell adjourning a condemned murderer, advised suicide as a means of escaping the gallows. The murderer followed his advice, and hanged himself. The adviser is to be tried for murder the law regarding him as causing the taking of a human life.

When a certain woman in town speaks of her 'late husband,' you must not conclude that she is a widow. Her husband is living, but he never comes home until midnight, and lies in bed until nine o'clock A. M. This is the reason she calls him her late husband.

'My boy,' said a solemn-visaged Evangelist to a lad who just emerged from a hair-pulling match with another boy, 'do you expect to rove hereafter in a land of pure delight?' 'No,' said the lad, 'I've busted another button off'n my trousers, an' I expects to get licked for it.'

THE DISTRICT CONVENTION.

The District Convention was held in Raleigh on Tuesday, to select a candidate for Congress, and also two electors for this District. The Convention was a large and harmonious one. So harmonious indeed that the re-nomination of Mr. Davis was made by acclamation. We give an abstract of the proceedings elsewhere.

The re-nomination of Mr. Davis is a worthy tribute to a worthy man. He won the confidence of the people before he was elected to Congress. He has sustained it since he has been there, by fidelity and ability. He now comes before the people for a second endorsation, which he will no doubt receive.

Nevertheless, it is wise that it be understood that the contest will be somewhat different from that of last year. Mr. Davis will have an opponent of more active character than Mr. Heaton, a far more adroit man, a better trained politician, a more earnest speaker, and one who inspires the sympathies of his hearers, and who can even impress his opponents. Ike Young is no mean opponent, and neither Mr. Davis nor the party can claim a victory by the mere fact of a nomination: It must be worked for and it must be fought for as if the battle was to be fought the first time—as it really the case between the present contestants.

But Mr. Davis has advantages he did not possess before. He is known now where he was before a stranger, and he is without that insidious opposition, and that unfaithful partizanship which embarrassed his first campaign. The contest will only be the more active and vigorious. We are sure the results will be equally certain.

THE STATE CONVENTION.

Which met in Raleigh on Wednesday was certainly the largest body of the kind that has ever met in this State, every county but one being represented, and many of them very fully. It was equally as respectable and imposing as any that ever sat, and it was as able probably as any, for it comprised an unusual amount of men who had previously given character to Legislative life, or to the action of other Conventions, and of men distinguished in professional and political experience, and of farmers distinguished for their intelligence. This outpouring of so vast a representation of all classes and professions from all parts of the State, with the one avowed purpose of governmental reform and purity of home rule was the happiest augury of the result, for it was not possible that so significant a proportion of the voting population of the Convention could tolerate the conception of defeat. The whole action of the body sustained this idea. It was buoyant, joyous, jubilant, sometimes obstreperous, but always harmonious and good humored, indulging in no wrangling or recrimination if somewhat noisy and persistent in asserting the rights of a favorite.

Coming to their work in such temper and spirit, their business was soon transacted, and beginning their sessions at 12 M., the whole ticket was nominated, by 4 p. m., a dispatch that is without a precedent, when it is remembered that delegates came to the Convention with diverse views and local favorites. But there was a spirit of concession, and a disposition to do justice to all sections of the State which made compromises easy and which resulted in the speedy welding together of a homogeneous ticket which will command the respect, the confidence and the enthusiastic support of the whole Party.

A glance at that ticket will show its character. The Republicans express themselves well satisfied, and say they could have desired no better evidence of the weakness of their opponents. Wait awhile gentleman; we will see. You think you will find Zeb Vance vulnerable. You will find him able now, as in the past, to inflict wounds from which you will recoil in dismay, and charge upon you with a vigor and steadiness that will overthrow you. You make little of Thomas J. Jarvis. You will find that a man who won his way to the Speaker's Chair and filled it with conspicuous ability; who was the leader of the Convention hosts and threw so much light on an intricate subject by the steady blaze of a clear well informed mind that carried conviction to every brain, you will find such a man not to be despised, when brought with his plain, practical, manly and able oratory in conflict with the flaming brands the Republicans send out to consume him.

These are the prominent figures on the ticket presented to the Democrats of North Carolina for support, and we feel almost sure of its success, whilst we admit the demand for hard work everywhere.

THE NOMINATIONS.—GOVERNOR.

The vote was on the basis of the Caldwell—Merrimon election, and resulted, Vance 962, Reid 4.

LIEUT. GOVERNOR.

Gen. W. R. Cox, of Wake and Thomas J. Jarvis of Pitt were placed in nomination. The final vote, after many changes had been made stood Jarvis 482, Cox, 469.

SECRETARY OF STATE.

Maj. Joseph A. Engelhard of New Hanover, Dr. S. J. Love of Haywood, Dr. R. K. Speed of Pasquotank, N. L. Williams of Surry and H. T. Jordan of Person were put in nomination. The final vote stood Engelhard 601, Love 386, Speed 35, Jordan 25, Williams withdrawn.

ATTORNEY GENERAL.

For this position Col. Thomas S. Kenan of Wilson, Edward Conngland of Halifax, H. A. Gilliam of Bertie, Platt D. Walker of Richmond and A. J. Dargan of Anson were put in nomination. As the ballot proceeded, each of these gentlemen received a handsome support, Mr. Walker, as the youngest of the candidates had peculiar reason to be gratified at the number, and character of his supporters and at their warm endorsement of his qualifications. As the ballot proceeded, it was evident that Col. Kenan was leading, and the delegations began rapidly changing their votes, and at the close it was moved and carried vociferously that the nomination of Col. Kenan be made by acclamation.

PUBLIC TREASURER.

Dr. J. M. Worth of Randolph was nominated by acclamation.

AUDITOR.

Dr. S. J. Love of Haywood was also nominated by acclamation.

SUPERINTENDENT OF PUBLIC INSTRUCTION.

For this office, Rev. C. H. Wiley of Guilford, Prof. Carr of Randolph, C. B. Denson of Chatham, Peter Wilson of Warand —— Scarboro of Johnson were put in nomination. Mr. Wiley's name was withdrawn, and the contest was quite close between the other gentlemen, resulting at length in the nomination of Mr. Scarboro.

ELECTORS AT LARGE.

Hon. D. G. Fowle and Gen. J. M. Leach were appointed Electors for the State at large.

DELEGATES TO ST. LOUIS.

P. C. Cameron of Orange, T. L. Clingman of Buncombe, Wharton J. Green of Warren and H. Short of Brunswick were elected as Delegates on the part of the State to St. Louis.

The Convention adjourned about 10 o'clock at night having completed the important labors on which the future destiny of the State so much depends, and adjourned to the National Hotel, where speeches were made by Hon. Zeb. Vance, Maj. Engelhard, Judge Fowle and J. M. Leach, and the vast assembly did not disperse until near two o'clock in the morning.

The New York Herald says: The Republican party should die. Its work is done. The soul has gone out of it. A generation of power has deadened its once noble aspirations. It is a party without aims, without principles, without even a decent consideration for its true statesmen.

The first thing, says the Troy Press, that the Democratic National Convention ought to do, after organizing, is to abolish the two thirds rule. It is not democratic in any sense, and has more than once led to defeat.

The Little Giant wants to run against Gen. Scales for Congress. Don't Steve, just think of Billy.

REPUBLICAN NOMINATIONS.

The Republican Convention which met at Cincinnati on the 13th sat in inharmonious session until Friday, when on the 7th Ballot, Rutherford B. Hayes, at present Governor of Ohio, was chosen, he having received 384 votes, 379 being necessary to a choice.

We are not surprised at the selection, having before expressed the opinion that it was a probable one. Yet as the time for the meeting of the Convention approached, the probabilities seemed to weaken under the indecent assaults made by Blaine to secure his nomination, the shameless efforts made by the President to force Conklin upon the Convention, the extravagant bids made by Conklin himself to buy the Convention; the new favor raised in favor of Bristow, and above all, the personal insignificance of Hayes himself. Hayes owes his elevation to several causes; to the irreconcilable differences between the other rival candidates which nothing could compose; to the accident, that he defeated Allen in the last gubernatorial contest; to the fact that as a candidate he presents no salient points of objection, and one who may be moulded into the shape to suit his manipulators; and possibly—for that does not matter much with the Republican party—that he has a fair personal record.

Wheeler of New York was nominated for the Vice-Presidency. The ticket is a fair one, and should it unfortunately be elected, there is some hope at least for the restoration of decency in the administration of government, and of peace and justice in its relations with the South. Humanity has cause to rejoice that Blaine and Morton, the bitter haters of the South, whose candidacy would have been another declaration of war against the South, were both disappointed.

The Richmond Whig says, the Tribune is rapidly drifting back to its former position as one of the leading organs of the Radical party. It is true, to give some color to its profession of independence, it occasionally has a word of commendation for Tilden as the most available of the Democratic aspirants for the St. Louis nomination upon the score of his prominence as a reformer. The Tribune's appreciation of reform, however, is not significant of any very deep convictions upon the subject since Blaine continues to be its pet candidate for Presidency. In fine, the editorial columns of the Tribune contain a mixed medly of inconsistencies; in one sentence it deplores the needless disturbance occasioned by Blaine's attempt last winter to revive all the sectional animosities of the past by rattling the bleached bones of Andersonville in the face of the North, and, in the next, its real animus as disclosed in its ill-suppressed admiration for the dastardly incendiary who would again, for selfish purposes, rekindle the flame of Northern hatred and malice towards their brethren of the South. Possibly the public sentiment of the North, which is daily becoming more decided in favor of practical reform, as illustrated by Gov. Tilden in the administration of the affairs of his State, may compel the Tribune to sustain the nomination of Tilden, and to go with the current that will sweep over the country should he be the nominee, and restore the Democracy permanently to power. Otherwise, it will be seen, the Tribune will be amongst the most earnest advocates of the Republican ticket whether headed by Blaine, Bristow, Morton, Conkling, Washburne, or any other Republican, save Grant.

The Radical Senate have decided not to pay Pinchback, the colored claimant from Louisiana for a seat in the Senate. Colored men may vote, and then stop is the radical policy.

"The 'General Grant' is the latest variety of cucumber. The phrase, 'as cool as a cucumber,' thus receives a new and merited significance.

In view of Mr. Dana's continued attacks on Blaine of late, is it any wonder that the latter gentleman was prostrated with Sunstroke?

Right Rev. Bishop Verot, of St. Augustine, Fla., died suddenly of apoplexy, on 14th inst.

Mr. Blaine has so far recovered as to be able to be out in a carriage.

Washington, June 17.—In the Senate to-day the counsel for Belknap moved that the trial be postponed until the middle of November next. The managers on the part of the House of Representatives ask leave to consult with the House on the question of postponement, and the Senate sitting as a court, adjourned until Monday.

The war has been over twelve years, and if the Northern people hate the Southern people because they were so hard to fight, we can't help it, but we feel that discussing it can answer no good purpose now.

THE PARTY PLATFORM.

ADOPTED BY THE DEMOCRATIC STATE CONVETION.

Whereas, The Republican party of the United States, for the last sixteen years, has had the complete control of the Government in all its Departments, and by its disregard of Constitutional limitation; by its unequal and oppressive taxation; by its extravagant and wasteful expenditures; by its unwise and mischievous financial policy; by its unexampled official corruption pervading all branches of its administration—has brought disgrace upon our Government and unparalleled distress upon our people: Therefore Resolved, 1. That in this Centennial year of our existence, we invite all patriots to ignore all dead issues, to disregard the prejudices engendered by past events, and to unite with us in the effort to restore a constitutional, honest, economical and pure administration of the Government, and thus promote the general welfare and happiness of the country.

Resolved, 2. That we earnestly and cordially recommend the adoption, by the people, of the amendments to the Constitution proposed by the Convention of 1875, and thus largely reduce the expenditures of our State and county governments and simplify their administration, so that we may be enabled to establish a thorough and enlarged system of public schools for the benefit of all the citizens of the State.

Resolved 3. That notwithstanding our repeated disappointments and impoverished condition, we still cherish the North Carolina project so long labored for by Morehead, Saunders, Fisher, Wm. Thomas and others, of uniting the harbors of Beaufort and Wilmington with the great west, and for the completion of the Western North Carolina Railroad to Paint Rock and Ducktown and of our other unfinished railroads. We pledge the continued use of the convict labor of the State, and of such other judicial legislative aid as will secure the completion of these great State works at the earliest practicable period.

Resolved 4. That the people of North Carolina now have it in their power by an earnest, determinate and united effort, to relieve our people from the evils of republican misrule, extravagance and corruption, and restore the prosperity of our State.

Resolved 5. That we denounce official corruption wherever found, and we hold honesty to be the first and highest qualification for office.

Washington, June 17.—Bristow formally resigned to-day to take effect the 20th inst.

The President to-day sent a message to Congress calling attention to the embarrassed condition of all branches of the government if there should be a failure to pass the necessary appropriation bills before the first of July, or otherwise provide for the emergency. He recommends an extension of the provisions of all appropriation bills covering the present year to the next fiscal year, in all cases where there is a failure to provide for the expenditures of the government by the first of July.

Wilmington, N. C., June 17.—Fire at Lumberton last night destroyed 17 buildings. Loss $20,000. Insurance $6,000. Supposed to be the work of an incendiary.

Concert.

The annual Concert and Soiree of the Misses Nash and Miss Kollocks School will take place at the Masonic Lodge on Thursday evening. It will no doubt be fully attended, as every preparation is made to make it unusually attractive. Mr. De La Croix who has already demonstrated so ably his musical proficiency before the Hillsboro public has in preparation some of the choicest pieces from his repertoire and he will be ably assisted by some of the best talent of the town. A treat is in store which should not be disregarded.

Orange County at St. Louis.

At the late State Convention, P. C. Cameron, Esq., of this place was appointed one of the four delegates on the part of the State to attend the Democratic National Convention to be held in St. Louis on the 27th inst. And at the Congressional District Convention held in Raleigh on the 15th, Mr. Thomas Webb was appointed one of the District Delegates to attend the same Convention. This is an honor Orange appreciates, and she accepts it as a compliment to the true and tried character of her Democratic principles.

We thank our friends of the Danville Express for their kindly and flattering notice of us in our retirement from the News. It is especially gratifying to us that we have the appreciation and good will of the journalists of other States.

Capt. J. C. Lock.

The Danville Daily Express has secured the services of this gentleman, one of the original founders of the Danville Daily News. We welcome his return to the field of journalism. We are especially gratified at the life, vigor and talent that at present illustrates the newspapers of Danville, alike creditable to them, and to the intelligent community which recently espoused opposite sentiments.

Telegraphic.

The new posts are all up, and new wire has been delivered at Hillsboro station for the reconstruction of the whole line.

A Greeting.

When the train with the returning delegation on board was on its way west on Thursday, it stopped at University Station to meet the train bound east. As the two trains were standing side by side, Zeb. Vance, who was on board, recognized a lady on the other train and put his head through the window to greet her. "Let me congratulate you, Gov. Vance," she said, "on your nomination, and on your prospects." "Rather, madame," he replied, "let me congratulate the people of North Carolina." This was not vanity, but the expression of a truth which every thinking man will recognize when he reflects upon the character of the Executive since the days of so called "Reconstruction."

The whole trip of Zeb. Vance was one Thursday of the ovation. At every station, crowds were assembled to greet him, and at nearly every place he had time to make one of his pleasant little speeches. This shows how the public pulse beats. This shows that the right chord has been struck.

Sanitary.

The wise men of our town seemed to have been [illegible] for [illegible] the well established character of Hillsboro for salubrity, and very little care in the framing of their town ordinances to preserve the purity of its atmosphere. There is but one ordinance (Sec. 34) bearing upon this subject and that is only applicable to nuisances that may be temporary in their nature, and susceptible of immediate abatement. There are nuisances which are permanent, and whose foul odors poison the sweet breath of heaven, our best, and almost our only remaining gift. It is of this we invite attention. Look around to [illegible] and you will find [illegible] we ask them to a pollotel [illegible]

We need a section of the Commissioners upon this point, and that they may enforce cleanliness and restore purity by the use of disinfectants. It is another pet only of comfort but of health. The purest air in the world becomes unfit to [illegible] by the impregnation of foul odors, and the healthiest climate ruined and the intrusion of deleterious [illegible]

A little [illegible] be sufficient to Mayor and Commissioners, without going into particulars.

Prof. [illegible] College of Physicians and Surgeons, Baltimore, says: For Dyspepsia, Torpid Liver and Constipation of the Bowels, Schenck's Dr. Wade's Liver Corrector is the best remedy that can be used.

The University—Election of President.

A meeting of the Trustees was held in Raleigh on Tuesday last at which the Hon. Kemp P. Battle was elected President. This completes the full organization of the University, which, since the opening last fall, has been under the control of the Chairman of the Faculty.

The Trustees has done wisely in giving the University the character of a thoroughly constituted State institution by selecting as its President a native of the State and an alumnus of the institution. There was a strong disposition to bring it into sudden notoriety by the choice of some one armed with military renown or enGlazoned with a general Southern fame. That might have had the effect of giving it a temporary prosperity; after all, dependent upon the life, or the tenure of the adventitious choice,—to sink, after his death or departure, into an obscurity more fatal than if such temporary appliances had never been made. Real prosperity is of slow growth. The University cannot be forced upon the public by artificial aids. Whatever it wears, it must win. And therefore the Trustees throw the University upon its muscle, and compel it, out of its own merits to demand the approval and support of the people. The election of Mr. Battle is a part of this idea. He is a native of the State. He is a graduate of the University. He is thoroughly identified with it, and in its struggle for a new existence has stood by it and been most earnest in his work. He deserves the position, as well for all these as for his acknowledged competence; and how we may safely predict the success of the University.

Maj. Seaton Gales at the same meeting was elected Secretary and Treasurer.

Capt. James I. Waddell.

The many friends of this gentleman will be pleased to learn that he reached the port of Sydney, New South Wales, on his third hazzard voyage in the Steamship City of San Francisco, after a prosperous voyage of 28 days 22 hours. The distance run was 7000 geographical miles. The ship stopped at Honolulu, at Kandavu, in the Fiji Islands, and at Auckland, New Zealand. Capt. Waddell was received with great distinction at Sydney, was made an honorary member of the Union Club, was quartered free of expense at the most magnificent hotel in the city, and was given a free ticket over every rail line in the Australian continent. The Sydney Herald contains a card issued by the passengers of the ship returning "acknowledgments of the skill, vigilance and admirable discipline with which the ship had been commanded."

We take pleasure in calling attention to this distinguished citizen to our townsman, who, after much trouble and persecution, has had an opportunity of again giving the world proof of his signal abilities as a seaman, his trustworthiness as a man, and his courtesy as a gentleman.

Dr. D. A. Robertson.

We are requested to state that this gentleman will not be able to fill his appointments in Hillsboro on the 4th Monday in June, as he will be necessarily absent from the State at that time. He will be here on the 4th Monday in July. This information will apply as well to Chapel Hill as to Hillsboro.

A Good Hotel.

There is no question that Hillsboro offers in the Orange House now kept excellently well by Mr. James Parks, one of the pleasantest summer resorts in the State. To to the business man of Newbern and Wilmington it is peculiarly acceptable, because he can place his family within easy reach by rail road, and has them in minutely communication by telegraph. The health, the pleasant air, the charming scenery and the good society of Hillsboro are proverbial. They need no addition to the commendations we have made of them above. They are all crowned with a good hotel, and the cup of attractions is filled.

Death of an Aged Lady.

Miss Sally Riley, an old and respected neighbor of ours, died on Thursday last, at the advanced age of 91. She died within a few hundred yards of the spot where she was born and lived her long life through almost under the same roof. She lived universally respected.

The Sentinel.

Mention is made elsewhere of the purchase of the Sentinel by Mr. McAden. Since this the paper has passed into the hands of Mr. G. A. Smith, late of the Danville News and formerly of Milton, and Mr Plummer Butler of [illegible] who assume editorial charge. We wish the new editors abundant prosperity.

P. C. Cameron Dead.

We are glad to learn that this gentleman will go to St. Louis as one of the Delegates at Large. The honor was entirely unsought by him, but is a recognition of his stern fidelity as a party man, and is also a fit tribute to one who has made himself so conspicuously useful in the cause of reformation—the very foundation stone of political purity and intelligence.

Sale of the Sentinel.

This paper was sold at public outcry at Raleigh on the 15th inst. R. Y. McAden becoming the purchaser for $500. It is understood that its publication will be continued, and that arrangements have been made to publish it as a first class Democratic Journal.

Aunt Abby House.

Orange had rather a singular addition to her Delegation in the State Convention by an invitation to this old lady to a seat upon the floor and her assignment to the Orange Delegation. Aunt Abby is upwards of 80 years of age, and is a woman of very marked and decided character. She is free to speak and prompt to act, and is decidedly a character. During the war she was a frequent visitor to the army of the Potomac to see her grand-sons, and was often enshrouded in the smoke of battle, and was as indifferent to the whistling of bullets as to the cackling of her hens. Since the war she has attached herself enthusiastically to the Democrats and is a mortal hater of the radicals; hence the honors bestowed upon her.

Feeling called upon to serenade his dear gazelle he borrowed an accordeon and, after getting so that he could squeeze a few doleful notes out of it, he posted himself under her window one night and began plaintively howling, 'Oh, whisper what thou feelest!' She poked her head out of the window at the third line and said, 'Oh, it's you, is it? I thought it was cats. And you want me to whisper what I feel-est, hey? Well, I feelest tired, that's what. Been working a hard running sewing machine all day. Get me a 'Light-Running Domestic' and then I'll know you mean business.'

STATE NEWS.

It is thought that P. E. West, of Newbern, will be the Republican candidate for Secretary of State.

The prospects are good for an abundant wheat harvest in Rockingham county, and all crops are looking well.

There were about 2,000 persons present at Trinity Commencement to hear Rev Dr. Talmage's sermon to the young men.

At High Point, on the North Carolina Railroad, on the 22nd instant, there is to be a grand convention of Good Templars, to be followed by tableaux at night.

The Newbern Nut Shell says: The daughters of the late Governor Ellis have just received a superb bust in Italian marble (life size,) of their distinguished father, which is now at the residence of their mother in this city. This bust of North Carolina's first war Governor is the work of Henry Dexter, a celebrated sculptor of Boston, and was begun in 1860, the object being, at the time, to have the busts of all the then Governors of the State of the Union placed in the Rotunda of the Capital at Washington. This object was defeated by the war.

The first ripe peach of North Carolina growth, has been seen in Raleigh. It was raised in Halifax county.

North Carolina's horned nigger and five legged calf failed to gain admission to the Centennial grounds.

Maj. Haigh will take seventy-five men of the Fayetteville Independent Light Infantry to Philadelphia as a part of the Centennial legion.

The News says that a mandamus of 41 pages, was served on the present Board of Commissioners of Raleigh, Monday, including the Mayor, City Treasurer and Clerk. It demands the common seal, and all the insignia of the city government, and is returnable before Judge Watts at the Court House in Raleigh, the 23rd day of this month.

We learn from the Advance that Wilson College commencement will begin on the 26th and end on the 29th. E. G. Woolson, Esq of the Advance, will deliver the literary address before the Irving Society, Monday morning; Rev. John R. Brooks, of Goldsboro, the baccalaureate sermon, Wednesday evening; and Col. W. F. Green, of Franklin, the annual oration, Thursday.

The Convention of the Fifth Congressional District, met at Greensboro on Monday, and nominated the following: For Congress, Gen. A. M. Scales; Elector, F. C. Robbins, of Davidson; delegates to St. Louis, Col. J. N. Staples, of Guilford, and Col. E. B. Withers, of Caswell. Alternates, M. S. Robbins, of Randolph, and Dr. William Mears, of Davidson. The delegates uninstructed. This information is communicated by a special dispatch to the Raleigh News.

A correspondent of the Wadesboro Herald says that on Friday morning last, Mr. Joseph Hancock, of Anson county, got up as usual, and as Mrs. Hancock thought, was going out to feed the stock. Mr. H. not returning, his wife went out to see what was the matter. She found him hanging from the cow-shelter cold and stiff in death.

HILLSBORO June 20th 1876.

MR. CHARLES MARY,

Your reply to my note in the Recorder through the Durham Reporter upsets my faith in man. Where is all that manliness with which you set out? Where is that unselfish devotion that made you the protector of the sex, and stimulated your offers to take a wife for better or for worse? The gallantry that would have led you to a wife's apron strings gives way to the meanness that would tie you to her purse string. You go into questions of real estate and bank accounts. I want a man for a husband that can make them for himself, and not abjectly take them at the hands of a father-in-law. I will not gratify you by telling you what are my possessions or expectations. If you had manifested more manliness, unselfishness and independence, you would not have lost what might have filled the measure of your hopes.

Farewell, and look elsewhere for a victim to your plans. LAURA.

THE PEOPLE WANT PROOF

There is no medicine prescribed by physicians, or sold by Druggists, that carries such evidence of its success and superior virtue as ROSCHEE'S GERMAN SYRUP for severe Coughs, Colds settled on the Breast, Consumption, or any disease of the Throat and Lungs. A proof of that fact is that any person afflicted, can get a Sample Bottle for 10 cents and try its superior effect before buying the regular size at 75 cents. It has lately been introduced in this country from Germany, and its wonderful cures are astonishing everyone that use it. Three doses will relieve any case. Try it. Sold by Dr. O. Hooker Druggist.

HOW AWFULLY CULPABLE.

Must be those afflicted with Consumption, Bronchitis, Asthma, or any disease of the Lungs, Throat or Chest, who neglect to use DR. TUTT'S EXPECTORANT after reading the following letter written by one of the most estimable ladies in the South:

SAVANNAH, Ga. April 28th, 1872.

DR. TUTT:

In gratitude for the benefit received by the use of your Expectorant, I do cheerfully add my testimony to its wonderfully power in curing deep-seated coughs. For several years I suffered dreadfully with a cough attended with great difficulty of breathing. I was induced to try your Expectorant, and it gave almost immediate relief. I took six bottles and am now perfectly restored. It is about five months since I began its use, and I have not had an attack since. It has been a great blessing to me. I cannot afford to be without it, and heartily recommend it to all who have lungs or throat disease.

Very respectfully,
Mrs. A. M. WELLBORN.

The Danville News says: Col. John D. Cameron retires from the editorship of the Raleigh News, in a brief and modest valedictory. He will devote himself entirely to his old paper, the Hillsboro Recorder, the Methuselah of North Carolina journals. The good wishes of a legion of sincere friends follow him wherever he goes.

DIED.

On Tuesday the 13th inst, Joseph, infant son of J. W. and Bettie E. Latta, aged one year. His prattling tongue is hushed in death, but his spirit hath entered the heavenly portals—and he is indeed with Him who said; "suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not; for of such is the kingdom of heaven.' Sorrowing parents, Jodie is safe "beyond the river." You cannot, and ought not to wish to recall him—but you may meet him one day "over there." Full and complete submission as expressed in "Thy will be done," is the only and sufficient consolation. J. F. T.

In Wilmington, on Thursday evening last, Mrs Julia Savage Waddell, wife of the Hon. A. M. Waddell. She was the victim of consumption, and had been yielding gradually to the destroyer for many months past.

LAMBS.

ON and after Saturday the 24th instant, I will be ready to deliver Lambs to all who have engaged them, and a few besides.

First come first served.

JAMES NORWOOD,

EXPERIENCE WITH SOWED CORN.

There are various modes of managing this crop, and all do not agree as to which is the better mode. A. H; in Country Gentleman, says: "I plowed up about one and a half acres of clover stubble of one year's growth, which was poorly seeded. After plowing I top-dressed slightly with yard manure and harrowed thoroughly. With a corn plow, arranged so as to run shallow, I made rows three feet apart and sowed a medium quantity of corn, and covered with a harrow running lengthwise of rows once. I sowed what is called 'Southern wheat corn,' being the large white horsetooth variety. I did not have enough seed to sow the whole piece, and made up the deficiency with Crosby's Early and Minnesota sweet corn. The latter is a dwarf variety about three feet in height, and having ears fit to use in sixty days from planting. This matured early, was cut and fed to my milch cows every evening while it lasted, and it kept up the flow of milk and product of butter to the maximum point, notwithstanding we were just at this time suffering from drouth. Then followed the Early Crosby, which was fed in the same manner, allowing the cows all they would consume, leaving nothing to waste. Occasionally I would give them a mess of the Southern corn to see if they would eat it as readily, but they invariably trimmed the leaves and left the stalks.

The Southern corn grew six to eight feet high, and a moderate wind one night broke it down, making the work of cutting very tiresome; so much so that I decided to raise no more Southern corn. I cut and hid it in rows, covering the whole ground, and it remained several days until it was well wilted; then it was bound in bundles of convenient size and drawn into the barn and shed, out of which the hay was pressed. I set the corn up on the butts, and every hand was cut, lest by leaving it bound it would mould under the bands. It should be set very straight and close, else it will by its weight lean so far over as to become too close packed, and thus mould.

I filled a large shed loft very full in this way, and it kept perfectly. I have used it all winter by cutting up night and morning and pouring over it boiling water, and mixing in corn meal, buckwheat bran and cannille. The result is we have made more and nicer butter than ever before this winter.

I shall pursue the same course in raising corn fodder this year, except that I shall not sow the tall-growing Southern, but instead, use the wrinkled sweet varieties. I will add that, to keep it clean while growing, I ran the cultivator through it twice, after which it was large enough to choke the weeds most effectually. To get hands for binding sowed corn, I have learned to leave a small piece, (the poorest part of the land,) apply no manure, and sow the corn thick, so that it will grow about four feet, and it will be tough enough to use for bands. Rich ground makes the stalk too brittle.

MORE EDUCATION AMONG FARMERS.

It is a fact shown before the British Parliament, that 'while the rental of land in Ireland had doubled during the previous hundred years, and that of England tripled the rental of Scotland had sextupled itself in the same time.' This is attributed mainly to the vast superior school system which Scotland has possessed, and the skill and enterprise it has fostered among the people. It is a fact that a truck-farmer within a dozen miles of any of our large cities will get a clean profit of two or three hundred dollars from an acre, while the average oldstyle farmer hardly gets that amount of profit from his hundred acres or more. These facts are worth studying by the still large class who do not see the use of agricultural papers and teaching, etc; and think muscle is the main thing in successful farming. The truck-farmer studies his market, knows what is wanted, learns how to raise it, when and where to sell it, believes in manure, buys it, believes in knowledge all about his business, takes his paper, reads and thinks, don't kick at facts because they are printed, keeps his eyes open and drinks in knowledge from men and books. He keeps learning and succeeds in his business. There is still a large class of our farming population completely stereotyped. Many take no agricultural paper, attend no fairs, farmers' club, try no experiments, have no faith in improved tools and stock, and are hardly able to tell at the end of the year whether they lose or gain in their business. Success in cultivating the soil is already, and is to be more and more, dependent upon brains. Men who read and think most, plan most wisely and execute skillfully, will succeed best. We need all the help we can get from the teachings of science, from journals, from fairs and clubs as well as from the daily experience of the fields.—American Agriculturist.

Salt sprinkled on cabbage prevents worms destroying them.

HOW TO MANAGE GRASS PLANTS.

During the first and second season, the grass plant, by the kink of care it receives, may be made an eyesore or a spot of beauty. Frequent cutting and winter protection are absolutely necessary. The lawn mowers, now within the reach of every one, make grass cutting on the lawn anything but hard work. During the first growing season, one should go over the young grass with the mower at least once in every ten days. Later in the summer, in spots where the grass is coming in sparsely, a forkful of yard manure should be scattered. Cut at intervals of ten days; it is policy to leave the cut grass on the surface as a mulch. Later in the fall, before cold weather sets in, the grass plat may be covered over with horse or yard manure, the coating to be left on until the following spring, when the coarser part may be removed by the rake. This will leave the ground in excellent condition for the next year's growth.

PEAS AS A FARM CROP

The idea has got ten-hold on the public mind that it is a good thing, but a costly one. It is true that, when considered simply as a preparation for wheat without calculating on any immediate return except through the increase of the wheat crop the outlay of money and labor might form a considerable item; but I am confident that a return much more immediate, and even, if possible, more valuable, may be realized. If farmers would give one field to the pea, to be drilled in with one hundred pounds of super-phosphate to the acre, and after maturity, feed down upon the ground to hogs, the pork realized would more than pay the entire expense of the pea-crop, and leave the land almost, if not quite, in as good condition as if the entire crop had been turned under, for everything would be left upon the land, except that carried away in the form of fat. I am satisfied that an acre of good peas will make at least one hundred pounds of pork, which will pay all the expense attending the crop twice over.—Correspondent of the Southern Farmer.

Two young gentleman were discussing whether or not etiquette demand that a young lady upon parting at the gate or door, shall ask the young man to call again. 'Certainly it is,' urged one. 'Certainly it isn't,' said the other. 'I go to see a young lady who knows what politeness requires, and she never asks me to call again.'

DR. WADE'S
"LIVER CORRECTOR"
AND CURE FOR DYSPEPSIA.
Free from Alcoholic Stimulants.

Among the many discoveries of valuable remedies for Dyspepsia, none stand higher than "WADE'S LIVER CORRECTOR."

Read the Following Testimonials:

Berea P O, Granville N C Mar. 10 '74.
Dr. Wade: Dear Sir—Have been afflicted with Liver Disease 3 or 4 years, which at times amounted to derangement. When in Baltimore last November, I procured one bottle of Liver Corrector. I now consider myself well.
Yours, respectfully,
ISAAC N. DAY, of Day & Meadows.

Prof. Moorman, Emeritus, of Washington University, Md, now Resident Physician, White Sulphur Springs, says:
'Dr. Wade's Liver Corrector and Dyspepsia Cure is one of the very best remedies for Dyspepsia I have ever used.'

Dr. Jones, a prominent physician in Virginia, who has prescribed it for two years, says:
'I can find no better remedy for Dyspepsia and Liver Complaint than Wade's Liver Corrector.'

Col. Goode, a prominent and well known gentleman of Va. says:
I keep it regularly in my family, and would not be without it.

Mr John A McArthur, County Treasurer of Duplin N C says: Wade's Liver Corrector has done me more good, and given me more relief in Dyspepsia, than any medicine I ever took, &c.

Prof. Noel, of College of Physicians and Surgeons of Baltimore, and a distinguished practitioner in that city, prescribe and uses it in his own family and says: It is the best remedy for Dyspepsia with Torpid Liver and Constipation of Bowels I ever knew.

Baltimore Sun says: Dr Wade's Liver Corrector is prescribed by our best physicians, for Dyspepsia and Liver Diseases, and we advise any of our friends suffering with such, to give it a trial.

Catholic Mirror says: We recommend Wade's Liver Corrector to all who are suffering with any chronic disease of Liver. We can speak of its merits as we have tried it.

Dr Walker, a celebrated physician of W Va., pronounces, Wade's Liver Corrector the best remedy extant for Dyspepsia in all its forms.
